My Mother's Voice.

My mother's voice.

My mother's voice! how oft doth creep
Its cadence on my lonely hours,
Like healing sent on wings of sleep,
Or dew on the unconscious flowers!
I might forget her melting prayer
While pleasure's pulses madly fly;
But in the still, unbroken air,
Her gentle tones come stealing by—
And years of sin and manhood flee,
And leave me at my mother's knee.

Washington Aliston.

In Arvine's Cyclopædia of Anecdotes, recent-ly published, the following are related respecting this distinguished American artist: The strong devotional feelings of this late distinguished artist formed one of the most prominent traits of his beautiful character. Connected with this characteristic is a remarkable incident in his early life, which has been related to us by one of his few intimate friends Mr. Allston was a member of the Episcopal Church. Although in early life he was ever a constant attendant, he was not strongly at-tached to religion, nor eminent for his piety. It would be too much to say that he was an unbeliever, or even a skeptic, in his views, but he was wont to speak slightly of religious things, and even to enjoy jests at the expense of holy subjects. His feelings, however, underwent a remarkable change, in consequence of a singular event in his life, which made a very strong impression, and was even regarded by him as a direct divine interposition in his be

Not long after his marriage with his first wife, the sister of the late Dr. Channing, he made his second visit to Europe. After a residence there of a little more than a year, his pecuniary wants became very pressing and urgent-more so than at any other period of his life. He was even at times at a loss for the means of purchasing the necessaries of life.

On one of these occasions, as he himself used to narrate the event, he was in his studio reflecting, almost with a feeling of desperation, upon his condition. His conscience seemed to tell him that he had deserved his afflictions and drawn them upon himself, by his neglect of religion, and his want of due gratitude for past favors from Heaven. His heart, all at once, seemed filled with the hope that God would listen to his prayers, if he would offer up his direct expressions of penitence, and ask for divine aid. He accordingly locked his door, withdrew to a corner of the room, threw himself upon his knees, and praved for a loaf of bread for himself and his wife.

While thus employed, a knock was heard at the door. A feeling of momentary shame at being detected in this position, and of fear lest be might have been observed, induced him to hasten and open the door. A stranger in-quired for Mr. Allston. He was anxious to learn who was the fortunate purchaser of the painting of the Angel Uriel, regarded by the artist as one of his masterpieces, and which had won the prize at the exhibition of the Academy. He was told that it had not been sold. "Can it be possible? Not sold! Where is it to be had?"

"In this very room. Here it is;" producing the painting from a corner, and wiping off the dust.
"Is it for sale? Can it be bought?" was the eager interrogatory.

"It is for sale; but its value has never yet, to my idea of its worth, been adequately appreciated, and I would not part with it."

"What is its price?"

"I have done affixing any nominal sum. have always, so far, exceeded my offers. "Will four hundred pounds be an adequate recompense?"

"It is more than I have ever asked for it."

"Then the painting is mine."
The stranger introduced himself as the Marquis of Stafford, and he became, from that moment, one of the warmest friends of Mr. Allston. By him, Mr. Allston was introduced to the society of the nobility and gentry, and he became one of the most favored among the many g fted minds that adorned the circle to which he was thus introduced, but in which he was never fond of appearing often.

The instantaneous relief, thus afforded by the liberality of this noble visiter, was always regarded by Allston as a direct answer to his prayer, and it made a deep impression upon his mind. To this event he was ever after wont to attribute the increase of devotional feelings, which became a prominent trait in ALLSTON'S GREAT PICTURE. Allston's great picture has been the subject of no little misunderstanding. It was unfortunate that such vague and almost boundless expectations in regard to it should have been excited in the public mind. His injudicious friends whispered about that he was engaged upon a stupendous work, and it was not long before a mysterious interest became attached to the rumor.

Years passed, and the picture did not make its appearance. Meantime, a few individuals had been favored with a glimpse of the design The subject was known to be Belshazzar' Feast. Delay only quickened curiosity and inflamed expectation. At length it was said that the canvass was rolled up, and the great

Two reasons have been assigned for thisone, that an execution has been levied upon the work, in consequence of which the artist had resigned it in disgust; the other, that the great idea in the picture—that of making the light all radiate from the hand-writing on the wall-had been anticipated by Martin.

In 1831, Allston says, in a letter to McMur-I have but a few weeks since been established in my new painting-room, which I have built in this place, (Cambridgeport.) Bel-shazzar has been rolled up and reposing in a packing case for more than three years, in consequence of my former large room in Boston passing into the hands of a new owner, who as converted it into a livery stable. . .

Belshazzar will still remain some time in his case; some embarrassing debts, and my immediate necessities, being the cause. I must be free in mind before I can finish. I trust, however, that the time will not be very long."

In another letter, he thus speaks of it: "I could long ago have finished this and other pictures as large, had my mind been free; for, indeed, I have already bestowed upon it as much mental and manual labor as, under another other state of mind, would have completed several such pictures. But to go into the sub-ject of all the obstacles and the hindrances upon my spirit would hardly be consistent with delicacy and self-respect. Nor could I be far enough understood, if I should do it, to answer by it any essential purpose. Those feelings which are most intimately blended with one's nature, and which most powerfully and continuously influence us, are the very feelings most difficult to give any distinct ap-prehension of to another."

It is well known that not until a few months before his death did Allston resume the work. He then erased several figures, altered his plan, and in the midst of these changes forever ceased from his labors. It remains a great fragment. His power and style are, however, clearly evident. To the artist it will ever be an object of veneration, for it bears the last touches of the great pencil. It has secured to Allston an immortality which would have satisfied even Napoleon himself. Allston was indeed one of the first stars in the bright constellation of American geniuses.

PHILOSOPHICAL APPARATUS. The College is provided with a Philosophical Apparatus that furnishes ample means of experimental illustration in all the different branches of Natural Philosophy. The sum of three thousand dollars has recently been expended, partly in this country and partly in London and Paris, in the purchase of new apparatus, adapted to the present advanced state of the Physical Sciences.

At the close of each study, or branch of study, the members of the class are carefully examined, and, at the close of the year, in all the studies of the year, in the presence of a Committee of the Trustees; and their attainments are communicated to the Board of Trustees.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION. RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

In addition to daily morning and evening prayer, divine worship is held twice on every Sunday, and the recitation on Monday morning is always in the Greek Testament. At the request of his parent or guardian, a student is permitted to attend any place of worship which himself or the parent or guardian may select. One member of the Faculty will attend at each of the different places of worship (Presbyterian, Episcopalian, and Methodist) in the village, and note all absentees.

Two at least of the Professors, with their families, will reside in the College buildings, and will board at a common table with the students, who are required to occupy such rooms as may be assigned them by the Faculty.

Newark Academy.

Newark Academy.

By a late re-organisation of this department of Delaware College, the Board of Trustees have taken measures to place it upon a new and improved foundation, and to endow it with advantages possessed by few similar institutions in the country. The Academy, heretofore merged in the College, and of course subjected to all the evils which have been found to attend the smalgamation of the two departments in the same building, and under the same government, now enjoys the privilege of a separate establishment, without losing those which result from its relation to the College proper.

A large and elegant edince, with all the necessary fixtures of a complete boarding establishment, has been erected and furnished, in which the students of the Academy board, under the immediate charge of the Principal and his Assistants; and all its exercises are conducted on a system of its own, uninterrupted by the interests or operations of the other department. The furniture of the study-rooms and dormitories has been chosen with peculiar reference to comfort and convenience for study; and no expense has been spared in providing the apparatus necessary to reader the means of instruction complete; giving to Newark Academy facilities for private study and comfortable accommodation of students, fully equal to those afforded by many of our colleges.

From its intimate relation to the College, students of the Academy enjoy many advantages not generally obtained at institutions of this kind. Those who wish to pursue some particular branch which falls more properly within the College course, may be admitted to recite in any of the College classes. Students also of proper age and discretion, by recommendation of the Principal, and permission of the Faculty, may enjoy the use of the College Library without additional charge. Admission also may be had to the Lectures, and such other privileges of the College scan be profitably enjoyed by academical timents.

the College as can be promably enjoyed by academical students.

The charge for Boarding, Washing, Fuel, Light, &c., with tuition in the English, Latin, and Greek, is seventy dollars for the Summer Session, and seventy-five for the Winter Session. The only extras are one dollar per session for incidental expenses, and a fee of eight dollars for Modern Languages, and a fee of five dollars for Drawing, from those who enter these classes. The sessions and vacations of the Preparatory Department are the same as those of the College.

HUNT'S MERCHANTS' MAGAZINE

COMMERCIAL BRVIEW. Established, July, 1839, THE Number for December, 1850, completed the twenty-third semi-annual volume. The work has been enlarged since its commencement in July, 1839, and each volume now contains more than seven hundred large octave pages. A few complete sets of the Magazine may be obtained at the publisher's office, 142 Fulton street, New York, neatly and substantially bound, for two dollars and a half per volume.

The following are a few of the many commendato ters received by the editor of the Merchants' Mag from distinguished statesmen:

Letter from the Hon. Henry Clay.

Ashlamp, 20th July, 1846.

Dear Sir: I wish to express to you the gratification I derived on receiving the July number of the Merchante' Magasine and Commercial Review, from viewing: your portrait in the beginning, and from reading your address to your friends at the end of it. When we feel under obligations to those who have contributed to our information and amusement, we are naturally desirous to possess all the knowledge of them, of their appearance, of the features of their countenance, and of the character and habits of their mind, which we can acquire. You have placed your numerous readers (at least you have me, if I may not speak for them) under those obligations; and the number of your valuable work now before me, in some degree, satisfies the desire to which I have alluded.

I have become quite familiar wift, the Magasine and Review, and have no besitation in expressing my humble opinion that it is eminently entitled to the public regard and support. It collects and arranges, in good order, a large amount of valuable statistical and other information, highly useful not only to the merchant, but to the statesman, to the cultivator of the earth, to the manufacturer, to the mariner, in short, to all classes of the business and reading community.

Entertaining this opinion, I am glad that it has been, and hope that it may continue to be, liberally patronized.

Offering you cordial assurances of my esteem and regard, I am truly your friend and obedient servant, Freeman Hunt, esq.

Extract of a letter from Hon. Millard Fillmore.

"I have read it (Merchants' Magasine) with a good deal of attention, and have no hesitation in saying that I think it one of the most valuable periodicals that was ever published. To the merchant it seems quite findipensable, and to the statesman and man of general information almost equally desirable. It is a grand repository of useful facts and information, which can be found nowhere so well digested and so accessible as in these numbers. I only Latter from the Hon. Thomas H. Benton.

Washington Cirry, April 20, 1849.

Mr. Freeman Hunt.—Sir: I owe you many thanks for the opportunities I have had to read the Merchants' Magazine, and have found it in reality to be a magazine, and that well replenished, of all the useful matter which this title would imply, and presented with a fullness and clearness which delights while it instructs. It is, in fact, a merchants' magazine in the large acceptation of the term—merchants who go between nations, whose large operations bring many departments of knowledge, and a view of the state of the world, into daily requisition. But it is not the great merchant only, but the one of more modest, but, nevertheless, of most useful operations—the merchant of the interior also—who will find this magazine to abound with the information the pursuit of his business and the elevation of the mercantile character requires. Nor is its utility at all confined to merchants, but extends to the legislator and diplomatist, and to all who are charged with managing the affairs of the nation. For myself, I have found it most useful to me in my senatorial labors, and have been in the habit for many years of carefully consulting it.

rial labors, and consulting it.

Very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS H. BENTON. Letter from Hon. Wm. H. Seward.

My Dear Sir: Have the goodness to place my name on your list of subscribers for the Merchants' Magazine. I regard it as an invaluable work for the use of all who would understand not merely commercial operations in this extending country, but the fiscal and commercial questions involved in the administration of the government.

I am, with great respect, your humble servant,

COLD SPRING WATER CURE.

CIVILIS NEW AND SPLENDID ESTABLISHMENT for

It will sell and system is afflicted, is situated about three miles from the city of Buffalo, in a rural spot, and so accessible from all points as to be reached without inconvenience or delay.

A line of omnibuses runs from the steamboat landings in Buffalo to the springs every ten minutes.

The house and grounds are near the extensive and beautiful green-houses and nurseries of the Meesra Hodges & Bryants; and the scenery in all directions is unsurpassed, as regards either variety or beauty; embracing points of view, from which may be taken in at a glance the broad expanse of Lake Erie, the Nigagra flowing majestically towards the Falls, extensive forests, and the "Queen City of the Lakes," with its moving panorama of steamboats and ceaseless enterprise.

The water, taken immediately from the celebrated "Cold Spring," is unsurpassed as regards coldness and purity, by any in the United States. The house, recently serected at a cost of about seven thousand dollars, has been fitted up in a neat and elegant style, at considerable extra expense, and is sufficiently especious to accessmodate seventy-five patients.

Connected with the establishment, and constituting one of its attractions, are the fixtures and convenience: to the nocess and healthful gymnastic exercises.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT. MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

The institution is under the general supervision of $\mathbb{E}$. M. Davis, M. D., Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Central Medical Collego, and Geo. W. Davis, M. D., formerly of Dansville, N. Y., the resident physician, and is permanently associated with the before mentioned gentleman as counsel, and associate of the medical board of control. And the friends of the establishment deem it a matter of felicitation that the services of Miss Mary M. Taylor, a lady of high medical attainments, who has attended two courses of lectures in the Central Medical College, have been secured, and that female patients can at any time avail themselves of her invaluable aid and counsel.

The steward's department is under the control of a gentleman eminently qualified for that position; and unwearied pains will be taken to have every thing appertaining to the establishment arranged on a plan, and conducted in a way, to ensure the comfort, and promote the health and happiness of all who may wish to swall themselves of its benefits. Eaths of all descriptions, adapted to the cure of the various forms of disease, and constructed on a scale not inferior to those of any other establishment in this country.

An enlightened public sentiment has everywhere repu An enlightened public sentiment has everywhere repudiated a reckless use of drugs in the treatment of disease; while intolerable sufferings and broken constitutions have imperatively demanded "Reform." A return from a wide and fatal departure from the simplicity of Nature's laws is called for, allke by a rational love of happiness and the deplorable exigencies of our condition. Hydropathy, or a scientific use of water as a restorative and curative agent, is a practical substitution of a simple and romarkably effections mode of curing the sick; for that system of drugging, depleting, and cauterizing, which, in obtaining the mastery over disease, too frequently places the patient beyond the reach of further aumoyance. The success of, the various Water Cure establishments in this country, to say nothing of any other, has fully confirmed the hopes of the early discoverers and promulgators of the great truths upon which the system is founded, and renders verbal communications, unnecessary. It is deemed sufficient to say, that the "Cold Spring Water Cure" will compare favorably with any of the well-conducted establishments of a similar character, and will be found equal to the best, as regards the order, convenience, and desirableness of its arrangements. The institution is now open for the reception of patients, and in full operation.

TERMS.

Each patient will be required to furnish two lines alseets, two cotton comforters, one woollen blanket, and four towels; or, where it is not convenient for the patient to furnish them as above, they can be supplied at the establishment by paying fifty cents a week.
